CONTENT	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Ideas found within your response are clearly supported with findings found in the researched documents. The tone of your response effectively conveys your chosen point of view. Explanations for your view point are clearly and concisely supported with evidence. The organization enhances and demonstrates the findings of your research. The order, structure, and/or presentation of your response has an easy flow. Content may contain convention errors but errors do not take away from the clarity of ideas. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Ideas found in your response are somewhat supported, but may sometimes be limited, insubstantial and too general. The tone appropriate to your chosen point of view is generally maintained. Explanations for your view point are supported with evidence. The organization sometimes enhances and demonstrates the findings of your research. The order, structure, and/or presentation of your response sometimes has an easy flow. Content contains convention errors which sometimes take away from the clarity of ideas. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Ideas found in your response are not supported with findings found in the researched documents. Little to no awareness of a tone appropriate to your chosen point of view is evident. Explanations for your view point are not supported with evidence. The lack of organization makes it difficult for the audience to gain a clear understanding of the response given. Content contains many convention errors that take away from the clarity of ideas.
